

Precariousness destroys us

Since friday afternoon, one of our comrades and friends is between life and death, at the hospital. In a huge financial insecurity, deprived of scholarship, desperate, he self-immolated in front of the CROUS* building of Lyon. Words aren't enough to express our pain and sadness.

Our repugnance and loathing too, towards those institutions that pushed him to commit the unthinkable, as he explained in a heartbreaking message. Because it truly is those inhumane institutions, this precariousness, this way too normalized violence that the State and the University apply to students in a general indifference that led his action, deeply political, desperate, but more importantly the gesture of a struggle against a shredding, fascist and racist system. They are therefore responsible and guilty.

He is in our thoughts, as well as his family, friends and loved ones. We await and hope for his remission, to welcome back with us and within our fights, this smiling comrade, this involved syndicalist, always available to help others, hearty, human.

To spread his message : « long live socialisme, long live autogestion, long live the social security** ».

We love you.

* Crous is the french government organisation that manages student life, housing and scholarships

** Social security is one of the victories of the National Council of the Resistance and is a collective fund aimed to allow everyone, regardless of social and financial status, access to medical help and care
